Economic and Financial Research Analyst, European Department
 - Supporting economists in WEO, article IV production, and research papers.
- 2024–2025 Master's Thesis PSL - Paris Dauphine
"Sovereign debt sustainability in developed countries: a general concept or a country-specific notion?"
 - Based on thorough academic literature review, assessed what specific country factors could affect the parameters driving sovereign debt dynamics and how fiscal space serves as a critical measure of unsustainability risk.
 - Assessed the impact of monetary policy, household savings behavior, demographic pressures, and institutional credibility on government borrowing rates and borrowing capacity (debt-to-GDP ratio).
 - Conducted cointegration econometric analysis (Engle-Granger) and panel regressions to identify a relationship between aging phenomena and worsening structural primary balance in developed countries.
 - Ongoing research: Estimating the impact of private-sector net financial wealth relative to government debt on sovereign yields in the US and Europe.
